MANDAMUS INVOLVES GOVERNOR AND GALVIN

Dry Attorney Asks United States Supreme Court To Force Davis To Remove Mayor Galvin

Claims Liquor Sold in Thousands of Places in Cincinnati

(By Associated Press) Cincinnati, O., March 5.—Attorney Geo. S. Hawke, Cincinnati dry leader, seeks the removal of Mayor John Galvin, of Cincinnati, on the charge of failure to enforce the prohibition laws.

This was disclosed today when he entered suit in the Ohio Supreme Court to mandamus Governor Harry L. Davis to serve notice on Mayor Galvin of charges filed by Hawke against the mayor with the Governor on February 24th last.

The suit demands that the court compel the Governor to investigate the charges and if they are sustained by evidence "to remove Mayor Galvin."

The petition further recites that because of wilful and gross neglect of the respondent to enforce the prohibition laws of the state intoxicating liquors are now being sold openly in thousands of places in Cincinnati, principally former saloons, drug stores and pool rooms.

"The suit is a surprise to me and I am not worrying about it," said Mayor Galvin. "There is less violation of the prohibition laws in Cincinnati than in any other city in the country."

SUIT SURPRISE TO DRY OFFICIAL

(By Associated Press) Columbus, O., March 5.—State Prohibition Commissioner Don C. Parker said no charges had been left with him by Hawke against Cincinnati officials for non-enforcement of the prohibition laws and that he was unable to account for the action of Mr. Hawke in filing the suit.

Governor Davis was in Washington today and will not return to Columbus until Monday. His secretary, Floyd E. Waite, said the Governor might have something to say about the charges Monday.

This is the first action brought against a local official under the provisions of the Miller bill which provides for the filing of charges with the Governor against local law enforcement officials for "wilful and gross neglect and failure to enforce the laws relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors."

WILSON'S PLACE IN HISTORY JAN SMUTS

By General the Right Honorable Jan Christian Smuts, Premier of the Union of South Africa, who served with President Wilson on the League of Nations Commission of the Peace Conference.

Gen. Smuts was an active leader of the Boer army in the field in the Boer War. He is a graduate of Cambridge University in England, served as State Attorney for the South African Republic and was well known as a member of the bar at Cape Town.

Accepting the outcome of the Boer War, he entered the service of the British Government, becoming Colonial Secretary for the Transvaal in 1907 and exercising a leading influence as a delegate in the National Convention of 1910, which drew up the Constitution for the present Union of South Africa. He was Minister of Defense of the South African Government and commanded the troops in the campaign against the Germans in East Africa in 1915-17. Promoted to be an honorary lieutenant-general, he was the South African representative in the Imperial War Cabinet in 1917-18. This led to his prominence in the Peace Conference and to his close contact with President Wilson. On February 8, of this year, Premier Smuts and the South African Party won a decisive victory at the polls over Gen. Hertzog and those who advocated the secession of South Africa from the British Empire.

It has been suggested that I should write a short estimate and appraisal of the work of President Wilson on the termination of his Presidency of the United States of America. I feel I must comply with the suggestion. I feel I may not remain silent when there is an opportunity to say a word of appreciation for the work of one with whom I came into close contact at a great period and who rendered the most signal service to the great human cause.

There is a great saying of Mommsen (I believe) in reference to the close of Hannibal's career in failure and eclipse. "On those whom the gods love they lavish infinite joys and infinite sorrows." It has come back to my mind in reference to the close of Wilson's career. For a few brief moments he was not only the leader of the greatest state in the world, he was raised to far giddier heights and became the centre of the world's hopes. And then he fell, misunderstood and rejected by his own people, and his great career closes apparently in signal and tragic defeat.

What is the explanation of this tremendous tragedy, which is not solely American, which closely concerns the whole world? Of course there are purely American elements in the explanation, which I am not competent to speak on. But besides the American quarrel with President Wilson there is something to be said on the great matters in issue. On those I may be permitted to say a few words.

THE position occupied by President Wilson in the world's imagination at the close of the Great War and at the beginning of the Peace Conference was terrible in its greatness. It was a terrible position for any mere man to occupy. Probably to no human being in all history did the hopes, the prayers, the aspirations of so many millions of his fellows turn with such poignant intensity as to him at the close of the war. At a time of the deepest darkness and despair, he had raised aloft a light to which all eyes had turned. He had spoken divine words of healing and consolation to a broken humanity. His lofty moral idealism seemed for a moment to dominate the brutal passions which had torn the old world asunder. And he was supposed to possess the secret which would remake the world on fairer lines. The peace which Wilson was bringing to the world was expected to be God's peace. Prussianism lay crushed; brute force had failed utterly. The moral character of the universe had been most signally vindicated. There was a universal vague hope of a great moral peace of a new world order arising visibly and immediately on the ruins of the old. This hope was not a mere super-

RUSSIAN ACQUITTED ON RITUAL MURDER CHARGE IS IN U. S.

Mendel Beiliss.

Mendel Beiliss, whose arrest and trial at Kiev, Russia, in 1913, on "ritual murder" charges startled the world, has just arrived in New York. Beiliss, who was entertained at a banquet upon his arrival, stated that after his acquittal of the fanatical charge that he had murdered a Christian Russian boy as a matter of Hebraic ritual, he was received like royalty in the various countries of Europe which he visited. He has been living in Palestine for several years and his wife and five children are there now.

ficial sentiment. It was the intense expression at the end of the war of the inner moral and spiritual force which had upborne the peoples during the dark night of the war and had nerved them to an effort almost beyond human strength. Surely, surely, God had been with them in that long night of agony. His was the victory; His should be the peace. And President Wilson was looked upon as the man to make this great peace. He had voiced the great ideals of the new order; his great utterances had become the contractual basis for the armistice and the peace. The idealism of Wilson would surely become the reality of the new order of things in the Peace Treaty.

IN THIS atmosphere of extravagant, almost frenzied expectation he arrived at the Paris Peace Conference.

Without hesitation he plunged into that inferno of human passions. He went down into the Pit like a second Icarus to bring back the fair Alcestis of the world's desire. There were six months of agonized waiting, during which the world situation rapidly deteriorated. And then he emerged with the Peace Treaty. It was not a Wilson Peace, and he made a fatal mistake in somehow giving the impression that the peace was in accord with his Fourteen Points and his various declarations. Not so the world had understood him. This was a "peace" peace, the same sort of peace as the victor had dictated to the vanquished for thousands of years. It was not Alceste's, it was a haggard, unlovely woman with features distorted with hatred, greed, and selfishness, and the little child that the woman carried was scarcely noticed, yet it was for the saving of the child that Wilson had labored until he was a physical wreck. Let our other great statesmen and leaders enjoy their well-earned honors for their unquestioned success at Paris. To Woodrow Wilson, the apparent failure, belongs the undying honor, which will grow with the growing centuries, of having saved the "little child that shall lead them yet." No other statesman but Wilson could have done it. And he did it.

THE People, the common people of all lands, did not understand the significance of what had happened. They saw only that hard, unlovely Prussian Peace, and the great Hope died in their hearts. The great disillusionment took its place. The most receptive mood for a new start the world had been in for centuries passed away. Faith in their governors and leaders was largely destroyed, and the foundations of human government were shaken in a way which will be felt for generations. The Paris Peace lost an opportunity as unique as the Great War itself. In destroying the moral idealism born of the sacrifices of the war it did almost as much as the war itself in shattering the structure of Western civilization.

And the odium for all this fell especially on President Wilson. Round him the hopes had centered; round him the disillusion and despair now gathered. Popular opinion largely held him responsible for the bitter disappointment and grievous failure. The cynics scoffed; his friends were silenced in the universal disappointment. Little or nothing had been expected from the other leaders; the whole failure was put to the account of Woodrow Wilson. And finally America for reasons of her own joined the pack and at the end it was his own people who tore him to pieces.

WILL this judgment born of momentary disillusion and disappointment, stand in future, or will it be reversed? The time has not come to pass final judgment on either Wilson or any of the other great actors in the drama at Paris. The personal estimates will depend largely on the interpretation of that drama in the course of time. As one who saw and watched things from the inside I feel convinced that the present popular estimates are largely superficial and will not stand the searching test of time. And I have no doubt whatever that Wilson has been harshly, unfairly, unjustly dealt with and that he has been made a scapegoat for the sins of others. Wilson made mistakes, and there were occasions when I ventured to sound a warning note. But it was not his mistakes that caused the failure for which he has been held mainly responsible.

LET us admit the truth, however, bitter it is to do so for those who believe in human nature. It was not Wilson who failed. The position is far more serious. It was the human spirit itself that failed at Paris. It is no use passing judgments and making scapegoats of this or that individual statesman or group of statesmen. Idealists make a great mistake in not facing the real facts sincerely and resolutely. They believe in the power of the spirit, in the goodness which is at the heart of things, in the triumph which is in store for the great moral ideals of the race. But this faith only too often leads to an optimism which is sadly and fatally at variance with actual results. It is the realist and not the idealist who is generally justified by events. We forget that the human spirit, the spirit of goodness and truth in the world, is still only an infant crying in the night, and that the struggle with darkness is as yet mostly an unequal struggle.

PARIS proved this terrible truth once more. It was not Wilson who failed there, but humanity itself. It was not the statesmen that failed, so much as the spirit of the peoples behind them. The hope, the aspiration for a new world order of peace and right and justice—however deeply and universally felt—was still only feeble and ineffective in comparison with the dominant national passions which found their expression in the Peace Treaty. Even if Wilson had been one of the great demi-gods of the human race, he could not have saved the Peace. Knowing the Peace Conference as I knew it from within, I feel convinced in my own mind that not the greatest man born of woman in the history of the race would have saved that situation. The great Hope was not the heralding of the coming dawn, as the peoples thought, but only a dim intimation of some far off event towards which we shall yet have to make many a long weary march. Sincerely as we believed in the moral ideals for which we had fought, the temptation at Paris of a large booty to be divided proved too great. And in the end not only the leaders but the peoples preferred a bit of booty here, a strategic frontier there, a coal field or an oil well, an addition to their population or their resources—to all the faint allurements of the ideal. As I said at the time, the real Peace was still to come, and it could only come from a new spirit in the peoples themselves.

WHAT was, really saved at Paris was the Child—The Covenant of the League of Nations. The political realists who had their eye on the loot were prepared—however reluctantly—to throw that innocent little sop to President Wilson and his fellow idealists. After all, there was not much harm in it. It threatened no present national interest, and it gave great pleasure to a number of good impractical people in most countries. Above all, President Wilson had to be conciliated, and this was the last and the greatest of the Fourteen Points on which he had set his heart and by which he was determined to stand or fall. And so he got his way. But it is a fact that only a man of his great power and influence and dogged determination could have carried the Covenant through that Peace Conference. Others had seen with him the great vision, others had perhaps given more thought to the elaboration of the great plan. But his was the power and the will that carried it through. The Covenant is Wilson's souvenir to the future of the world. No one will ever deny him that honor.

THE honor is very great, indeed, for the covenant is one of the great creative documents of human history. The Peace Treaty will fade into merciful oblivion, and its provisions will be gradually obliterated by the great human tides sweeping over the world. But the Covenant will stand as sure as fate. Forty-two nations gathered round it at the first meeting of the League at Geneva. And the day is Edmund, S. C. — "I was run down with nervousness and female trouble and suffered every month. I was not able to do any work and tried a lot of medicine, but got no relief. I saw your medicine advertised in a little book that was thrown in my door, and I had not taken two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before I could see it was helping me. I am keeping house now and am able to do all of my work. I cannot say enough for your medicine. It has done more for me than any doctor. I have not paper enough to tell you how much it has done for me and for my friends. You may print this letter if you wish." — ELIZABETH C. CORLEY, care of A. P. Corley, Edmund, S. C.

Ability to stand the strain of work is the privilege of the strong and healthy, but how our hearts ache for the weak and sickly women struggling with their daily rounds of household duties, with backaches, headaches, nervousness and almost every movement brings a new pain. Why will not the mass of letters from women all over this country, which we have been publishing, convince such women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help them just as surely as it did Mrs. Corley?

In the first round Friday morning Hillsboro won from West Liberty on forfeit and Chillicothe was defeated by Xenia High, 22 to 16.

In the second round in the afternoon McClain High played its first game and defeated Waynesville 29 to 6. Hillsboro High triumphed over Marysville, 19 to 18 and Xenia won another game by eliminating Urbana Rural, 14 to 8.

In the third round McClain High of Greenfield did notable work by winning from Newark, 15 to 7 while Xenia met one of its old neighbors. The score was Xenia 24, Hillsboro, 0.

Advices from Delaware are that Stivers and Steele, both of Dayton will be the schools to represent the southern division in the finals next week. Xenia High and Hamilton are also showing good form while Greenfield won recognition by its victory over Newark.

At Williamsport

In a double header at Williamsport Friday night two games were won by local teams. The Y. M. C. A. Triangles defeated the Williamsport Independents, 35 to 20, and the Y. W. C. A. Girls by one lone point, 14 to 13, won over the Williamsport Girls. The Triangles were without the services of their crack guard, Charles Moorehead.

Your Farm is Your Factory

Perhaps you never thought of it in just that way, but farming is a great manufacturing business and your farm is a factory in the true meaning of the word.

The factory manager overhauls his plant every so often to make sure that it will run properly and produce the most goods at the least cost. In just the same way, the farmer checks up his buildings and equipment, makes those little repairs which save big repairs later on, and builds whatever buildings he needs to help produce more crops with less labor and expense.

Lumber prices are back to normal. No longer need you postpone building on account of high prices of lumber. Now is a good time to build that new barn you have been wanting for several years and to make other improvements. Begin now and get them done before Spring work commences.

Here in our business we are trying to do our part in bringing conditions back where they should be. Our years of business experience, our building plans and ideas, and our friendly, sincere counsel and assistance are at your service for the asking, with no obligation, of course.

Let's talk it over the first convenient day.

The Inaugural Address

The one big outstanding feature in President Harding's inaugural address in addition to its commendable brevity, is the very marked absence of announcement of any definite program of action to which the executive has committed himself.

President Harding, it seems clearly disclosed in his inaugural address, assumes office with an open mind regarding the solution of the great problems which are confronting us and the absence of any positive declaration by the President in his inaugural address as to what our national policy is to be and what, if any, plan he has determined upon for the solution of our foreign and domestic problems cannot be explained on any basis except that of purpose mirroring a nintention to await developments and suggestions, meeting problems and solving them as occasion demands rather than attempting to shape events and thought to the acceptance of predetermined plans.

It seems equally clear, from the inaugural address, that President Harding is determined, in so far as it is possible to do so, to avoid antagonisms and to give to each branch of the government full scope in the exercise of its powers, to receive and consider all suggestions, permit, even to court, discussion, to share responsibility with others rather than assuming the entire burden himself.

The conclusion seems clearly warranted, from the address, that the nation now has an executive who will be conciliatory in dealing with clashing forces, one who may be induced to square his views with those of others, to give and to take in the exchange of ideas and in the adoption of policies, rather than one of dominating mentality who does not court and will not permit challenge.

Situations will develop requiring firm and vigorous action by the executive and his, after all, is the big responsibility which cannot be shifted or avoided.

But while we must and do recognize that the time for final action, for plain pronouncements of intention and policy and definite procedure will come to President Harding, we can assume that he will meet them, when the time comes, with that degree of firmness and finality and definiteness required and may safely congratulate ourselves that he enters upon his official duties with no pronounced opinions to be met, challenged and uncompromisingly fought from the very start of his term.

The address indicates that from the generalities pronounced, open discussion must develop the definite plans which are to control and that the chief executive is ready to engage, open minded, in an exchange of views on all subjects.

There is a sincere, wholesome and broad patriotism in every line of the inaugural address and the earnest purpose of President Harding to give the nation his very best service is abundantly proven.

Off For The South

This is the time of year when the sunny southland is invaded by base ball players and enthusiasts. Almost all of the big league clubs, representing the large cities of the North and East, have transported the major portion of their players to southern city playing grounds for the purpose of practice and getting themselves into fit physical condition for the season which begins early in April.

These yearly pilgrimages of the base ball players to the southern states have long been an established custom but each year they grow in number of invaders and length of stay as well as in cost to the club owners.

Older followers of the game can remember when only a few of the wealthier clubs were able to afford the luxury of a spring training trip for players in the southland, but in recent years the southern training trip for players has been considered as necessary to the game as uniforms, bat and balls. No big league club managers consider it possible to dispense with a southern training trip. It has become a necessary part of the great game.

There are direct benefits, too, to the club owners aside from those accruing to the players. The circle of interest is enlarged, the home followers increase their interest and enthusiasm by reading accounts of camp work and exhibition games before the opening day and cities outside the league circuits develop favoritism for some one of the clubs.

The southern training trips are costly but beneficial to players, managers and public.

POETRY FOR TODAY

SO YOU ARE GONE

So you are gone, are gone into the night,
And I am left in loneliness apart,
As is some island on a vast sea chart.
When no fair sail comes billowing in to sight;
So you are gone, who are my soul's delight.
The one flower in the garden of my heart
That evermore without the aid of art
Keeps its unfolding petals pure and white.

So you are gone, there is no word or prayer,
No deep petition flung upon the wind
Will win you back since duty bids you go;
Yet haply when some flush of morning air
Tinges the sky, the awaiting hills behind,
You will return again * * *
and I shall know!

Even The Leaders of the "Irreconcilables" and "Bitter-Enders" Are Almost Optimistic Over The New Cabinet Appointments.

PREJUDICE IS BEHIND MOST OF CRITICISM OF NEW CABINET

Bring Class to Any Official Family

Daugherty The Weak Spot And Fall Uncertain But The Average is High.

BY MARK SULLIVAN
(Copyright 1921)

Washington, March 5.—The only practicable standard by which to appraise Mr. Harding's cabinet is that of previous cabinets. Most of the public comment ignores that starting point. Some of the comment has taken as its base of comparison a vague picture of an ideal cabinet, which arose loosely out of Mr. Harding's use of the phrase "the best minds of the country."

It was not merely, nor even primarily, of his cabinet that Mr. Harding used this phrase. In fact he meant it more broadly to express the idea that he would follow the practice of going out side his official and personal relations; that as respects everything that may come up from time to time, he will, in an unofficial and informal way, supplement the advice of his official family by consultation with "the best minds of the country."

Also, much of the comment on the new cabinet is prejudiced by the fact that it comes from persons who had set their hearts in the inclusion of two men—Gen. Wood and Elihu Root—who were omitted. Another considerable number had set their minds against one man who was taken in—Harry Daugherty. A judgment which makes too much of the omission or inclusion of certain individuals is obviously not well grounded. The fact is that several unprejudiced persons who have made a careful comparison of Mr. Harding's cabinet, man for man, with every other cabinet within the present generation have come to the judgment that Mr. Harding's cabinet is, on the whole, decidedly stronger than any of the others.

In this comparison, the man who has the most difficult precedents to measure up to is obviously Mr. Hughes. Few will contend that Mr. Hughes need have any fear of comparison with the three secretaries of state in Mr. Wilson's cabinet, Colby, Lansing and Bryan. But after that, Mr. Hughes must endure comparison with Senator Knox, who was Taft's secretary of state, and Root, who was Roosevelt's.

In fact, it is just these two men who are now preferred to Hughes by those who are not satisfied with the selection of the latter. As to Knox, it was only a few senators and others who preferred him to Hughes. Their reason for this preference is precisely one reason why Hughes is the better selection. They wanted Knox because Knox had the extreme irreconcilable position on the League of Nations. On this point alone unbiased persons must prefer Hughes, for the precise reason, that his mind is more open and not antagonistic to any one section of feeling. And there are other reasons why Hughes need not fear comparison with Knox.

Preference for Root Reasonable

Comparison with Root, however, is a different matter. Those who continue to wish that Root had been the choice have at least reasonable ground for their position. While the superiority of Root's experience is undeniable, it is also true that the number who regard this superiority as the only test is comparatively small. Hughes as a man who has been a candidate for President, who has campaigned the country for himself and others, and has been a member of the most exalted group of men in our national government, the Supreme court, carries to thousands of persons to whom he is better known than Root the conviction of high character and very great ability.

I suspect it may be just this greater quantity of public knowledge of Hughes, the wider geographic distribution of those who had seen him or knew of him and had confidence in him, that helped cause Mr. Harding's preference for Hughes. The smaller world that knows something about our foreign relations preferred Root because of his experience, but is equally ready to concede that Hughes's equipment, omitting experience to be quickly acquired, is adequate.

In a popular sense, as well as in the sense of careful judgment, the inclusion of Hoover carries an amount of favorable conviction quite as great as, or even greater than, Hughes. It will be hard to make the public believe that a cabinet which includes Hoover is ever on the side of anything that idealists regard as indefensible. Moreover no one will contend for a moment that any man who has ever filled the post of secretary of commerce has had anything even faintly approaching either the ability or the public confidence that Hoover has.

Weeks as secretary of war carries as much conviction as or more than any other man who has filled that post as far back as the time when Elihu Root held it. In his home state of Massachusetts Weeks obviously has aroused an amount of disapproval sufficient to retire him from the senate.

Weeks Able and Diligent

In Washington, however, Weeks stands high for ability and diligence in his committee work in the house and senate he acquired complete mastery of three important branches of the government's business—the Post Office, Banking and Currency, and Military Affairs. He has an accurate mind and he has a quality which while not spectacular, will carry a man a long way—the quality of industry, the will to work.

While Mr. Weeks's identity with the standpoint end of the Republican party is complete, it is also a fact that he is progressive in a cautious way. He gave some aid and comfort to Senator Kenyon in the later's advocacy of the bill to regulate the packers, and throughout the recent cabinet discussions was one who steadily advocated the inclusion of Hoover. Will Hays has been commonly described as a political appointment. But so also was Burleson, and, before Burleson, Hitchcock. That the public should regard Hays's selection as merely political is easily explained. The only knowledge the public has had of Hays has been as a party official. Those who follow these things closely, however, know that Hays has unrelenting industry and genius for organization. It is fair prediction that Hays's administration of the Post Office department will be memorable for efficiency. Moreover, Hays has a prevailing sympathy with that portion of the Republican party that leans toward idealism and progressive measures.

Denby is a man of the highest character. In his home community he has that completely favorable opinion that can come only from unqualified high character. He has an imagination which, while not bold, will be both distinguishable and adequate in his new duties. It is said by those who know best that the thing the navy now needs most is that good feeling among officers and men which is called morale. For several reasons Denby is as good a man as could possibly have been chosen for the particular purpose of supplying morale. The fact that at nearly 50 years of age he joined the Marine Corps as a private helps in this regard. The mere fact of Denby's appointment creates generous confidence and good will throughout the department.

Daugherty Most Criticized

The new Attorney General is, of course, the man against whom most public criticism has been directed. But it is also to be said that a president who went to such lengths in resisting opposition as Mr. Harding had to in appointing Hughes and Hoover is entitled to lenient judgment for including one man on a personal basis. Furthermore, the useful thing now is to admit a statute of limitations as to Daugherty's political past and judge him wholly by future performance.

One other appointment which, in some circles has been received with doubt is that of Fall to the Interior Department. The Secretary of the Interior is the custodian and trustee of vast amounts of public property, against which assaults are constantly being made by private interests seeking advantage. Many feel that in this conflict Fall will not stand as uniformly implacable against private interests as has been demanded in recent years by the friends of what has come to be known as conservation.

It can hardly be hoped that Fall will take as high a position on conservation as has been enforced by public opinion upon the Interior Department Secretaries of recent Administrations. One angle of the criticism of Fall expresses itself more crudely and literally than is really intended by the phrase, "God Help the Poor Indian," and one humanitarian agency charged with the protection of the Indians' rights has gone formally on record in protest against Fall's selection.

Few will deny in the matter of professional experience that Mellon is more highly equipped for Secretary of the Treasury than Houston, Glass or McAdoo of Mr. Wilson's administration, or of MacVeigh of Taft's or Cartmyn of Roosevelt's cabinet, or Leslie M. Shaw also of Roosevelt's cabinet. Criticism directed against Mellon has on deal with his experience or with his professional equipment otherwise. It has dealt rather with his long identity with big corporations. It expresses the suspicion that in any conflict of interest between organized business and the public Mellon by reason of his long associations may lean toward the latter.

Whether that suspicion is well-grounded can only be judged by performance. Meantime the one safe assurance we have is that work of the United States is going to be directed by a very great business man. That this is a public need is apparent now, and will even more apparent in a few weeks, when the income tax returns will be in, and we shall all know that the best informed now expect, namely that the government this year is likely to have considerably less than enough money to pay its bills.

SOCIAL : PERSONAL MENTION : CLUBS

Plans for the Ohio Wesleyan banquet next Tuesday night at Grace M. E. Church, are moving off smoothly, and indications point to an attendance close to a hundred, including O. W. U. Alumni ex-students and present members.

President Hoffman will deliver the address of the evening, his fluency and brilliancy as a speaker well known.

Prof. W. W. Davies and local students will come down from Delaware for the banquet.

An occasion of interest to many friends in this city was the celebration of the ninetieth birthday of Mr. George Brown, proprietor of the Cherry Hotel in this city a number of years ago, and grand father of Mr. Charles Browne, proprietor of the Arlington Hotel, at the Browne Hotel in Cincinnati on Monday.

A noon dinner entertained by the only son, Mr. George Browne, Jr. and wife, brought together two grand sons, Mr. Charles Browne and son, Roy of this city, Mr. Ralph C. Browne and family, of Cincinnati; and a number of Cincinnati relatives. The only daughter Mrs. Fanny Crooks of Chicago died some time ago.

Mr. Browne is a very remarkable old man, enjoying the best of health and having the use of every one of his faculties. He cast his vote at the last election with all the eagerness of a young man and insisted on walking to the polls.

The Elks' Social Session Committee has arranged for an informal six o'clock dinner next Wednesday evening, March the ninth at the K. of P. Castle.

The dinner will be accompanied by music and cabaret singing by the famous O'Brien Orchestra, and cards and dancing follow the dinner.

The dinner menu will include.

First course
Fruit Cocktail, served with half of Grapefruit.

Second Course
Roast chicken, dressing, small peas with carrots in timbals gilet gravy hot rolls, preserves, butter, salad served with dinner, head lettuce, new tomatoes, radishes.

Third Course
Merangue with whipped and ice cream, caramel sauce, coffee.

Giving added assurance of a successful dinner the following women will take charge Mesdames Roy E. Brown, R. R. Kibler, Wm. Lipsett, Lulu Sheets, A. Clark Gossard, Walter Ellis, Frank Michaels, Glenn B. Rodgers, O. D. Maddox, Arthur J. Burgett.

This is the first social affair in which the Elks' and their ladies have participated for some time and is being much anticipated. It is being elaborately planned under the direction of the social session committee, Arthur J. Burgett, G. H. Linton, Glenn Rodgers, A. Clark Gossard.

ARE ALL ARTISTS' MODELS YOUTHFUL?

Mrs. Emma V. Doyle.

Who says that all artists' models are youthful and sprightly? Mrs. Emma V. Doyle, sixty-eight years old, of Washington, discredits this general belief. She is one of the most popular models for the art classes at the Corcoran art gallery. With her glossy white hair and her quaint garb she is a picturesque figure for the artists.

Toledo, is being complimented with several social functions. Mrs. Arthur S. Burkett, 2880 N. High St. entertained last evening, Sigma Kappa sorority, will have a luncheon today at Lazarus' and this evening Mrs. Malcolm R. Prime, 260 Oakland Ave., will be hostess at a shower. Ohio State Journal.

Mrs. Charles Roberts and daughter Blanche were hostesses to the Ladies Aid of Staunton Friday afternoon. Fifteen members were present and one guest.

Devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Will Craig. The usual business session was held after which the following literary program was given, readings by Miss Blanche Roberts and Mrs. Marion Marks; piano selection, Mrs. Al McCoy and Mrs. Dore Miller.

Dainty refreshments were served during the social hour.

Mrs. Hoppess, who resides on the New Holland pike was agreeably surprised Thursday when friends and neighbors gathered at her home with well filled baskets. At the noon hour a bounteous feast was enjoyed.

Those present were Mesdames Anna Hosler, Lucy Hays, Almira Thompson, Lora Mahan Maria Coe, Jean Brown, Arthella Miller, Donna Altemang, Judith Henkelman, Hazel Oswald and little daughter Doris.

The $75,000 tapestry, presented to Mrs. Wilson, wife of the ex-president, during the peace conference, will find a place in the new home of the Wilsons, Mrs. Wilson it was learned today has removed the tapestry from the East room of the White House, where it has been hanging since it was brought to the United States.

A charming novelty in the line of entertainment was the Japanese Tea enjoyed by Mrs. D. H. Rowe's Sunday School Class in Grace Church basement Friday evening.

Fifty women participated and the hostesses numbered twenty-four, forming one division of the class.

The basement was transformed into an exceedingly pretty tea room decorated with Japanese flags, banners and blossoms. At the daintily appointed tea table, aglow with yellow bloom, Mrs. Harry Hosler and Mrs. Mary Fite poured. The other hostesses served.

Mrs. C. S. Haver had charge of a number of games which provided for a merry evening.

Mrs. Will N. Hay and Mrs. Haver acted as committee chairman.

Mrs. Will P. Higgins is giving a bridge tea Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Harley Wilkin of Washington C. H., as an honor guest. — The Hillsboro Dispatch.

Mrs. William H. Sharp, Columbus, president of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs, announces the following dates and places for holding five of the eight district conventions:

March 11-12, Northeast district, Kent.

March 29-30, Middle North district Mansfield.

April 7-8, Southeast, Logan.

April 12-13, Middle, East, New Philadelphia.

May 10-11, Middle West, Sidney.

The vice presidents or their various districts are Mrs. H. Z. Hansen, Akron; Mrs. Charles L. Halter, Fremont; Mrs. F. A. Sosnap, Chillicothe; Mrs. G. W. Hixon, Cambridge, and Mrs. Alen Marshall, Piqua.

Dates and places for holding the conventions of the Central Northwest and South west districts have not been announced.

Club Magazine in Toledo
Toledo club women are to have a club magazine of their own. There are perhaps few cities in the country where club women are more progressive than they are in Toledo.

Middletown Federation.

Although only a little more than a year old and one of the "baby" federations in Ohio, Middletown is already beginning to make its sister federations "sit up and take notice." Last month the Middletown club women celebrated their first birthday as a federation with a party attended by 250. Mrs. Kunkler, Dayton, gave an interesting address, the federation raised $1,125 for the Near East Relief fund. Two weeks ago a call came to federation from the tuberculosis hospital for knitted hospital caps and within ten days seventy-five caps were finished and sent.

One of the finest pieces of work the Middletown club women have been doing is for the children. They believe they have come close to solving the movie problem for the little folk. Every Saturday morning at 10 o'clock they have pictures for the kiddies. The attendance varies from 350 to 1,200.

Of interest to Club Women

Here are just a few of the splendid things being done by club women in other states:

"Let's weave the red, white and blue threads of our patriotism into the design of our work," that is the slogan of the American Citizenship and Americanization committee of Nebraska.

FORTRESS OF SOVIET CAPTURED

(By Associated Press)
Washington, March 5.—Official in formation that the Soviet fortress at Kornstadt has fallen into the hands of revolutionary troops was received today by the Finnish Legation.
A cablegram said that the revolutionaries were holding Legation commissaries as hostages. A wireless message of this effect from Kronstadt, the dispatch said, was intercepted by the Finnish general staff.
The cablegram also said that unconfirmed reports had reached Helsinki via Ethonia that "a tremendous upheaval reigns throughout Russia," that the Moscow garrison refused to fight and that the greater part of Petrograd was under the control of revolutionists.

London, March 5.—The peasants and workers of the province of Abkhazia in the Black Sea district of the republic of Georgia, have revolted against the "Menshevik government." It is declared in a wireless dispatch from Moscow today.
"At the invitation of the Menshevik" the message adds, "French warships are bombarding the populated regions liberated by the insurgents."

STIVERS AND STEELE HIGH TAKE HONORS

Dayton Teams Last in Ring at Southern Tournament. Greenfield Nosed Out.
Delaware, Ohio, March 5.—Championship high school basketball honors for Southern Ohio rest with two Dayton teams—Stivers and Steele. They will meet here March 14 to decide the championship.
At the same time Woodward Tech. of Toledo and Mt. Vernon will play for the championship of Northern Ohio. The two winning teams will then play for the championship of Ohio.
Dayton Steele in the final round of the Ohio Wesleyan basketball tournament for Southern Ohio teams defeated Cambridge 22 to 3 and Dayton Stivers defeated Delaware 12 to 6.
The fifth round of the basketball tournament resulted in elimination of four teams from further competition Saturday afternoon. The victorious teams that remained to play in the semi-finals in the evening were Dayton Steele, Dayton Stivers, Delaware and Cambridge.
The first game of the fifth round was played between Cambridge and Greenfield McClain, Cambridge winning 14 to 11. This game was marked by closing guarding and was rather rough, one man on each team being elected on personal fouls. At the same time Dayton Steele was defeating Hamilton in a hotly contested battle by a 7 to 4 score. Each team secured one field goal the first half, but neither one scored from the field in the second period. The depleted Stivers team defeated Crooksville handily by a 21 to 11 score. The Delaware and Xenia game was a close guarding game and hard fought the first half ending 4 to 0 in favor of Delaware. The second period both teams began scoring and Delaware won in the last minute and half 13 to 10.

ANOTHER FORMER WASHINGTON MAN MAY BE HONORED

Advices from Washington, D. C., that Dr. J. Morton Howell, of Dayton, for a number of years a resident of this city, will in all probability represent the United States as Consul General at Cairo, Egypt, under President Harding's administration, was received with much satisfaction by Dr. Howell's many friends here.
Since Dr. Howell left this city a number of years ago he has been recognized as one of the leading surgeons and physicians of Dayton. He has been identified with a number of state and national organizations and for some time was president of the State Board of Health.
He has long been an intimate friend of President Harding, Senator Willis and Attorney General Daugherty and has taken an active interest in Republican politics.
The fact that Dr. Howell is almost certain of the appointment comes as very pleasing news to his numerous friends in this city. His qualifications for the position for which his name is being mentioned are exceptionally good. Dr. Howell has travelled extensively throughout Europe and Egypt and has written a book on European travels.

GIRLS DEFEATED BY LEESBURGERS

Washington High School Girls received one of their few defeats of the season when Leesburg High School Girls finished on the long end of a 9 to 7 score in a basketball game played at Leesburg, Friday night.
It was a return game. When Leesburg played here Washington won and inflicted on Leesburg its first defeat in two years. Both teams were equally matched and made an exceptionally good appearance on the floor.
At the end of the first half the score stood 5 to 5 and Leesburg was able to win out in the last quarter by shooting one more basket than Washington in the last few minutes of play.
Miss Bernadine Norris, the captain of the Washington team, was unable to play, and her place was very capably filled by Miss Katherine McLean.
The team was chaperoned by the Coach and Assistant Coach, Miss Minnie Gray and Miss Mary Weaver.
The lineup: Helen Karney and Elizabeth Morse; forwards; Portia Brownell and Katherine McLean, centers; Florence Bliss and Gale Bowen, guards.

WILSON IS NOW
OF FORMER SELF

Labored For Eight Years Under Serious Physical Difficulties

Was Found Stricken After Return From Speaking Trip

(By Associated Press).
Washington, March 4.—Woodrow Wilson leaves the White House today to seek health and rest in a life of practical retirement for a few months, and then pursue his work for world peace.

Characterized by his friends as much a wounded veteran of the World War as if he had been shot in battle, he goes back to private life today regarded by his partisans as a living sacrifice to his ideals.

Woodrow Wilson was not a well man when he took up the presidency. He was decidedly a sick man. He was threatened with Bright's disease, which physicians diagnosed as having been brought about by a particular treatment for frequent head colds to which he and the first Mrs. Wilson were subject. The wife died soon after, but his case yielded to care.

Some years before that, Mr. Wilson had suffered a thrombosis, in one of his legs. It was the lodging of a blood clot in an artery, but because of its location not serious. It was, however, a complaint of the same nature which caused his breakdown in 1919, when the clot formed on the right side of his brain impairing the control of his left arm and leg.

Little known also, is the fact that Mr. Wilson, like Mr. Roosevelt, was practically sightless in one of his eyes. Bursting blood vessels in the retina practically made it useless, although the impairment was in part overcome by the use of eye glasses. He suffered also from nervous indigestion. With a predisposition to take cold easily added to this list of troubles, Woodrow Wilson took up the arduous duties of the Presidency with far less physical equipment than the

COLUMBUS

"THE BIRD OF PARADISE"

"The Bird of Paradise," that truly wonderful play dealing with Hawaiian life, written and produced by Richard Walton Tully is to be the attraction at Hartman Theater Columbus for a week's engagement commencing Monday March 7th with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday and bids fair to take its place with such perennial visitors as "Ben Hur," "The Old Home Stead," "Way Down East," and "In Old Kentucky."

Already it is in its tenth season of joyous travels and the interests in its survival is unabated. Indeed no more appealing play than "The Bird of Paradise" can well be imagined as it tells a remarkably interesting story of romantic import, punctuated by thrills and scenic surprises, points directly to a plausible moral invites unobtrusive comedy scenes and incidents of the most natural kind, and introduces native music by Hawaiian singers and players throughout the entire unfolding of its dramatic purpose.

It is the story of a beautiful Hawaiian princess, who in her blind passion of love for a young American physician, marries him. Her love is reciprocated but the man eventually falls a victim to the lowest animal cravings. After that comes tragedy and sorrow, ending with self sacrifice of Luana as an atonement for having transgressed the religion of her own people by marrying a Christian.

It is in the final scene when unhappy princess casts herself into the burning lake of Kilauea, that the sensational climax is reached and the audience is treated to one of the most spectacular stage effects ever produced.

The atmosphere of the play being semi-tropic, Mr. Tully announces a complete new production and has given a free hand to the scenic artists, who are said to have taken the fullest advantage by offering a series of elaborate pictures that convey a more gorgeous idea of the enchanting islands than the original production presented.

The cast is headed by Florence Rockwell, who will again assay the role of the Hawaiian princess. The same supporting company includes Robert Brister, Brandon Evans, Gertrude Walther, Rose Watson, James K. Applebee, John Sumner, and the famous Hawaiian singers, whose melodies are one of the appealing charms of the play.

FARM NOTES

GIVE CHICKS SOUR

MILK; NO WATER

Over a million and a quarter dollars is lost annually in Ohio because poultry raisers do not feed sour milk in place of water to growing chicks, according to E. L. Dakan, poultry specialist at the Ohio State University.

These figures are based on a loss of 25 chicks, valued at 20 cents apiece, on every farm in Ohio. Prof. Dakan believes that the mortality is actually even higher.

In view of this loss the county farm bureaus and the poultry department of the Ohio State University are recommending that no water whatever be given to chicks until maturity.

"The feeding of sour milk is almost a specific remedy for white diarrhea, leg weakness, cannibalism, and gapes, which are the causes of heavy losses in young flocks. The feeding of sour milk stimulates rapid early growth. The chicks are not susceptible to early chick diseases and have enough vitality to resist them. It is impossible to overfeed chicks on sour milk.

The Uncle Sam Oil Co., with principal offices in Kansas City, has retained Attorney Francis J. Heney of Los Angeles to bring suit against the Standard Oil Co. for $1,000,000 damages. H. H. Tucker, president of the Uncle Sam company, has made this announcement. The basis of the suit is alleged to be in controversies between the two companies over the ownership of the lease of 430,000 acres of land in Oklahoma.

"Sour milk is preferred to sweet, since it is apparently more palatable and because it is impractical to keep milk sweet for chicks under average farm conditions. Changing from sweet to sour is not a good practice."

SWAP SCRUBS

As part of a campaign to rid the state of scrub livestock, the Ohio Berkshire Swine Breeder's Association is recommending to its members that they trade off their extra young boars to farmers in the neighborhood for grades or scrubs in service, and then send the stock traded in to the butcher.

Farmers who keep only purebred sires may secure certificate by taking up the matter with the county agricultural agent or J. W. Watchet, Department of Animal Husbandry, Ohio State University.

At present prices it is more economical to buy apples by the barrel than by the box.

Planted too much of one vegetable and not enough of another in your garden last season? Might plan it on paper some of these days.

As a source of iron, potatoes, properly cooked, furnish nearly as much as do eggs and compare as favorably with cereals in the supply of lime and phosphorus.

When pruning has been neglected for a number of years, it is better to extend the rejuvenation over two or three years rather than to do it all in one season.

Milk has its great value as a food not because of its fuel value, but rather because of its ability to repair waste tissue, to supply material for growth, and to keep the bodily machinery in good working order and to keep it running smoothly.

An apple a day keeps the doctor away.

In addition to their food value, potatoes give bulk to the diet and help to keep the blood alkaline.

As much should be expended in the diet for fruits and vegetables together as for bread and cereals, and more than is spent for meat, butter and other fats.

It is believed by practically all authorities that the best interests of health and of economy would be served by reducing the use of meat and increasing the use of milk.

If pullets are to lay eggs by Thanksgiving, Reds Rocks and Wyandottes must be hatched by March and Leghorns during April. For breeding purposes, however, they may be hatched somewhat later.

Spreading manure on the lawn is likely to introduce a lot of weed seed. A pound of nitrate of soda or phosphate of ammonia and five pounds of acid phosphate or bone meal evenly sprinkled over the average city lawn will provide sufficient fertilizer.

Battling Levinsky and Mrs. Levinsky.

Battling Levinsky, light heavyweight glove slinger, is back in the U. S. after a fruitless visit to England. He went there mainly to fight Bombardier Wells the night Pete Herman laced Jimmy Wilde all over the ring. The Battler, however, fractured a bone in his elbow just before the night of the bout and had to cancel the engagement. Other plans for matches in Europe also failed. "Maybe I'll have better luck next time I go over," says Levinsky.

GUARD OUTFIT

Declares City Very Fortunate in Being Authorized to Form Machine Gun Outfit.

Renick Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen of this city, and who is enrolled in the Pennsylvania Military College, has forwarded The Herald his views on the forming of the proposed machine gun company.

In the manuscript is included a description of the duties of machine gun men, as gained from instruction in the Military College, and he points out that the city is very fortunate in being authorized to form a machine gun company. He says:

"From articles appearing in the home paper it seems that Washington is determined to maintain the excellent position won by Company M in the old O. N. G. and the Rainbow Division.

"I do not know the conditions under which Washington has been offered this proposed new Armory, or how it can be so fortunate as to be given the additional honor of organizing a machine gun company, but I am sure it is worthy of a co-operative determination on the part of the citizens of Washington to secure these benefits.

"I cannot help but believe that the valient services of 'Old Company M' are in a great way responsible for this splendid opportunity.

"We are very proud of the men who represented Washington C. H. and Fayette county in the World War and we are especially proud of our men who were 'ready'; of the men of 'Co. M' who went into the conflict when fighting men were needed most.

"The mere mention of 'Old Company M' gives every citizen of Fayette county cause for a feeling of mingled pride and gratitude.

"It is the duty of the young men from 18 to 30 who realize the duties and responsibilities of their citizenship to incorporate the tradition of 'Old Company M' into a new and up-to-date machine gun company of the Ohio National Guard. I spoke of Washington being especially honored by being assigned a machine gun company, because of the fact that due to the change now being authorized by the War Department, the unit plan of organization is being materially modified, due largely to the universal employment of automatic weapons.

"Under the new organization of an infantry battalion, there are three companies of two platoons each, having one automatic rifle to each squad and one machine gun company.

"When an infantry battalion is acting alone, the machine gun company is charged with the special duties of overhead fire and the protection of the flanks. To effect this purpose each machine gun squad of 'Gun' is capable of operating alone or independently.

"While disciplinary drill is the basis of all training yet this bug-bear is reduced to a minimum in machine gun instruction. Individuality and efficiency are the essential characteristics of the new system of organization.

"In machine gun drill the duties of every man from numbers one to eight are specifically defined and each man is required to know and to be able to perform the duties any one of the other seven men.

"Competative tests are held between squads to secure speed in 'going into action' and 'going out of action,' field dismounting, etc.

"The non-commissioned officers of each 'gun' must be trained in the service of security, range estimation, patrolling and in addition is more or less responsible for the instruction and discipline of his squad. "Each man feels a personal responsibility and interest in his particular squad. In other words an organization just being formed allows an equal opportunity for any member to win his stripes.

"The ultimate object of all military training is to excel in battle, but the immediate object of clear thinking citizens of Washington C. H. and Fayette county should be the securing of a National Guard Machine Company and this beautiful new Armory. An armory thus obtained would stand as tribute to those who have gone forth in our cause, a school of citizenship and as evidence that we are a 100 per cent community in our national plan of defense."

SEE WAGE DECLINE
AMONG BRITISH

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, (By Mail)—Labor correspondents of various London newspapers assert the cost of living has declined in Great Britain and that the reduction of wages is inevitable they report decreases in wages already have occurred in cases where sliding scales of pay were based on the selling prices of the goods produced.

These wage cuts however, are mostly in trades which are poorly organized. There is a good deal of speculation among the labor writers as to the attitude of workers in highly organized trades when they are called upon to accept a lower wage, in accordance with previously arranged plans based upon the cost of living.

The Ministry of Labor official figures on the cost of living for working class families show that at the end of December the percentage was 169 higher than in 1914 against the November figure of 176, while for January it was expected to reach 165.
